

Becoming a counselor

Earn your clinical mental health counseling (CMHC) and fulfill the educational requirements to become a licensed mental health counselor. Take classes on campus, or with our online synchronous degree option. If you choose to complete your degree online, two courses require completion on campus. Courses can typically be completed over two separate weekend experiences at Lynn.

In the program, you'll learn how to work with a variety of clients in substance abuse treatment centers, community mental health agencies and educational settings. Study personality theory, psychopathology and human sexuality, and review legal and ethical issues in counseling. Plus, gain experience with mental health agencies through networking and internships. After graduating, register with the state of Florida to complete two years of supervised clinical hours and pass the national exam to become a licensed mental health counselor (LMHC) or nationally certified counselor (NCC). This master's program is accredited by the Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs \(CACREP\).

“My time in Lynn’s clinical mental health counseling program can only be described as transformative. My experiences made me a great counselor in the making and an even better person.”
