

Where healthcare meets business

Are you interested in business and healthcare? The healthcare industry is expanding and it's time to get your feet wet. Healthcare management services are needed now more than ever. Whether you want to manage medical services or patient services, a healthcare management degree gives you the skills necessary to excel in the healthcare industry—no matter what career journey you take. In this program, you will not only gain a solid background in the healthcare system, you'll also get a strong foundation in business operations and regulations, policies, risk management and ethics.

Here, you'll also discuss the management of healthcare facilities and examine the system's organization, structure, personnel, and cultural components. Plus, you'll study the influences exerted by economic, political and social forces within the larger society and the healthcare system's response to these influences.
